The role

The Global Priorities Institute (GPI), in partnership with the Department of Economics, offers Research Fellowship openings for postdoctoral researchers. The Fellowships offer early career researchers the opportunity to develop their research portfolio within one of the world’s leading Economics departments and so strengthen their future position in the academic job market. We welcome applications from researchers simultaneously applying to tenure track jobs (or equivalent) who might complete a one or two year postdoc at GPI before giving their notice early and taking up a faculty position.

You will conduct advanced research in economics. At least 50% of your time will be spent on topics directly relevant to the Global Priorities Institute’s research agenda. The role requires no teaching load and only minor supervision responsibilities, although teaching may be arranged if the fellow would like to do so.

The Global Priorities Institute is an interdisciplinary research centre, which aims to develop and promote rigorous, scientific approaches to the question of how appropriately motivated actors can do good more effectively. GPI formally sits within the Faculty of Philosophy. You will be a member of GPI’s economics research team and an Associate Member of the Department of Economics, one of the world’s leading Economics departments. GPI is located in Trajan House in central Oxford, a building shared with the Future of Humanity Institute, which is also part of the Faculty of Philosophy, and the Centre for Effective Altruism. You will have access to open plan desk space in the Economics Manor Road Building in addition to space at GPI’s new office. You will be assigned a mentor who is a member of the Sub-Faculty of Economics and you will also have the opportunity to receive mentorship and research advice from more senior economists external to Oxford who work with GPI.

This is a full-time position at the University of Oxford for a fixed term of four years, with a possibility of extension. Successful candidates may also choose to leave the position before the completion of four years at GPI, for example if they accept a faculty position at another university. Visa support is also available for successful applicants from overseas. Subject to UK tax regulations and the availability of funding a relocation allowance may be available to support with a move to Oxford.

We particularly encourage applications from women, black and ethnic minority candidates, as these groups are underrepresented in economics.

Responsibilities

- Prepare research for publication in top economics journals, both alone and in collaboration with other group members.
- Develop and manage their own programme of academic research and appropriately manage administrative activities.
- Participate in internal seminars and discussion groups to develop and refine ideas collaboratively.
- Contribute ideas for new research projects, and help to shape GPI’s research agenda
- Present papers at conferences and external research seminars
- Act as a source of information and advice to other members of the group on research expertise
- Represent the research group at external meetings/seminars, either with other members of the group or alone
- Carry out collaborative projects with colleagues in partner institutions, and research groups
- Play a leading role in developing the economics research group within GPI and building connections with academics from other institutions
- Ad hoc teaching and supervision if and when the opportunity arises, insofar as this is beneficial to the postholder’s career development
- Assist in the supervision of pre-doctoral research fellows and visiting graduate students, particularly during Oxford’s Trinity term (April – June)
- Contribute as appropriate to engagement with the Research Excellence Framework impact agenda, in liaison with others in GPI and elsewhere in the Department of Economics and Faculty of Philosophy

Pre-employment screening

If you are offered the post, the offer will be subject to standard pre-employment checks. You will be asked to provide: proof of your right-to-work in the UK; proof of your identity; and (if we haven’t done so already) we will contact the referees you have nominated. You will also be asked to complete a health declaration so that you can tell us about any health conditions or disabilities for which you may need us to make appropriate adjustments.
Please read the candidate notes on the University’s pre-employment screening procedures at: https://www.jobs.ox.ac.uk/pre-employment-checks

Selection criteria

Essential selection criteria

• PhD awarded or close to completion either in Economics or in a closely related discipline together with equivalent experience and expertise in Economics.
• Outstanding academic ability.
• Genuine strong interest in global priorities research.
• Possess sufficient specialist knowledge of and interest in economics and global priorities research to conduct advanced research within the economics research group at GPI.
• An excellent record of research suitable for publication in international peer-reviewed economics journals, relative to the applicant’s career stage.
• Ability to manage own academic research and associated activities.
• Proven ability to contribute ideas for new research projects.
• Excellent communication skills, including the ability to write for publication, present research proposals and results, and represent the research group at meetings.

Desirable selection criteria

• Experience of independently managing a discrete area of a research project.
• Experience of actively collaborating in the development of research articles for publication.
• Experience of and enthusiasm for interdisciplinary research.

How to apply

Applications are made through our e-recruitment system and you will find all the information you need about how to apply on our Jobs website https://www.jobs.ox.ac.uk/how-to-apply.

Your application will be judged solely on the basis of how you demonstrate that you meet the selection criteria stated in the job description.

All applications must be received by midday UK time on the closing date stated in the online advertisement.

Applications must include:
• A CV and supporting statement. The supporting statement should be about one page in length and should include at least 100 words that clearly demonstrate your knowledge of and interest in global priorities research. You should also explain briefly how you meet the selection criteria for the post using examples of your skills and experience. This may include experience gained in employment, education, or during career breaks (such as time out to care for dependants).
• A research paper of your best, most polished work in economics, typically a job market paper, that is suitable for us to use to assess your academic ability. It is not important that the topic of the research paper be relevant to the Institute’s research agenda, provided that sufficient evidence of your fit to the Institute is provided elsewhere in your application.

• The details of three referees. Reference letters can be submitted using the EconJobMarket (www.econjobmarket.org) web portal (though other application materials must be submitted via the University of Oxford recruitment portal). Alternatively, candidates can ask their referees to send their references directly to gpi-office@philosophy.ox.ac.uk by the closing date for this post. If you are applying for more than one position at GPI, each referee can submit a single letter of reference for all of your applications. Candidates should supply each referee with a copy of these further particulars. The Faculty of Philosophy wish to take this opportunity to thank in advance those referees who write on behalf of applicants.

Please upload all documents as PDF files with your name and the document type in the filename (for example “Surname.CV.pdf”). Our online application portal can only handle PDF files and so documents in other formats may not be accepted as part of your application.

Details on the selection process

Longlisted candidates will be invited to complete a questionnaire concerning the nature of their interest in global priorities research and/or effective altruism.

Shortlisted candidates will then be invited:
• To submit a research proposal (of no more than 1,000 words) prior to interview;
• To participate in a short work task (of about 45 minutes in length, with no more than a few hours of preparation required); and
• To participate in an interview (around 30 minutes in length), and
• To give a presentation on their job market paper

We aim to notify longlisted candidates within two weeks of the closing date for applications, and to further notify shortlisted candidates within one month of the closing date. We anticipate holding final interviews in mid-January. We will update our website with timings for the selection process: https://globalprioritiesinstitute.org/opportunities/

Your application will be judged solely on the basis of how you demonstrate that you meet the selection criteria stated in the job description.
Information for priority candidates

A priority candidate is a University employee who is seeking redeployment because they have been advised that they are at risk of redundancy, or on grounds of ill-health/disability. Priority candidates are issued with a redeployment letter by their employing department(s).

If you are a priority candidate, please ensure that you attach your redeployment letter to your application (or email it to the contact address on the advert if the application form used for the vacancy does not allow attachments).

If you need help

Help and support is available from: https://hrsystems.admin.ox.ac.uk/recruitment-support

If you require any further assistance please email recruitment.support@admin.ox.ac.uk.

To return to the online application at any stage, please go to: www.recruit.ox.ac.uk.

Please note that you will receive an automated email from our e-recruitment system to confirm receipt of your application. Please check your spam/junk mail if you do not receive this email.

Important information for candidates

Data Privacy

Please note that any personal data submitted to the University as part of the job application process will be processed in accordance with the GDPR and related UK data protection legislation. For further information, please see the University’s Privacy Notice for Job Applicants at: https://compliance.admin.ox.ac.uk/job-applicant-privacy-policy. The University’s Policy on Data Protection is available at: https://compliance.admin.ox.ac.uk/data-protection-policy.

The University’s policy on retirement

The University operates an Employer Justified Retirement Age (EJRA) for all academic posts and some academic-related posts. The University has adopted an EJRA of 30 September before the 69th birthday for all academic and academic-related staff in posts at grade 8 and above. The justification for this is explained at: https://hr.admin.ox.ac.uk/the-ejra

For existing employees, any employment beyond the retirement age is subject to approval through the procedures: https://hr.admin.ox.ac.uk/the-ejra

There is no normal or fixed age at which staff in posts at grades 1–7 have to retire. Staff at these grades may elect to retire in accordance with the rules of the applicable pension scheme, as may be amended from time to time.
Equality of opportunity

Entry into employment with the University and progression within employment will be determined only by personal merit and the application of criteria which are related to the duties of each particular post and the relevant salary structure. In all cases, ability to perform the job will be the primary consideration. No applicant or member of staff shall be discriminated against because of age, disability, gender reassignment, marriage or civil partnership, pregnancy or maternity, race, religion or belief, sex, or sexual orientation.

The Global Priorities Institute

The Global Priorities Institute is an interdisciplinary research centre conducting foundational research to inform the decision-making of individuals and institutions seeking to do as much good as possible with their limited resources. It prioritises topics which are important, neglected, and tractable, and uses the tools of multiple disciplines, especially philosophy and economics, to explore the issues at stake. It is part of the Faculty of Philosophy. However, you will also have an affiliation with the Department of Economics.

The research agenda for the Global Priorities Institute is collectively set by the researchers at the centre. It focuses around the question of what we should do with a given unit or resources if our aim is to do the most good. This covers a wide variety of topics in economics, including: growth theory; the economics of climate change and other catastrophic risks; discounting; game theory and mechanism design; estimating indirect effects; forecasting; Bayesian updating; and causal identification and external validity.

GPI is planning to significantly increase its economics capacity in the next few years, and employ multiple researchers at various levels of seniority. Researchers at GPI will have the opportunity to contribute significantly to this growth, and to influence the research direction of the Institute.

More information on the research agenda and the Institute’s published work to date is available from the website (http://globalprioritiesinstitute.org/). Potential applicants are strongly encouraged to consult this additional information before applying, in order to assess their fit to and interest in the Institute.

As described in our research agenda, GPI currently has a particular focus on “longtermism”, and is particularly keen to hire researchers who share this interest and would be enthusiastic to contribute to this research program. However, this focus is not exclusive: candidates whose research skills and/or interests lie in other areas of global priorities research are also strongly encouraged to apply.

About the University of Oxford

Welcome to the University of Oxford. We aim to lead the world in research and education for the benefit of society both in the UK and globally. Oxford’s researchers engage with academic, commercial and cultural partners across the world to stimulate high-quality research and enable innovation through a broad range of social, policy and economic impacts.

We believe our strengths lie both in empowering individuals and teams to address fundamental questions of global significance, while providing all our staff with a welcoming and inclusive workplace that enables everyone to develop and do their best work. Recognising that diversity is our strength, vital for innovation and creativity, we aspire to build a truly diverse community which values and respects every individual’s unique contribution.

While we have long traditions of scholarship, we are also forward-looking, creative and cutting-edge. Oxford is one of Europe's most entrepreneurial universities and we rank first in the UK for university spin-outs, and in recent years we have spun out 15-20 new companies every year. We are also recognised as leaders in support for social enterprise.

Join us and you will find a unique, democratic and international community, a great range of staff benefits and access to a vibrant array of cultural activities in the beautiful city of Oxford.

Faculty of Philosophy

The Oxford Philosophy Faculty has over 150 academic members, all of whom are undertaking teaching and/or research in Philosophy at Oxford. Of these, around 60 hold permanent posts within the Faculty or the colleges; many distinguished philosophers hold posts elsewhere in the University. Oxford thus contains the largest group of philosophers in the UK, and one of the largest in the world. It has a vigorous research culture: Oxford’s Faculty of Philosophy performed outstandingly in the 2014 REF, with 51% of overall research activity assessed at the top grade of 4*, ahead of all other UK philosophy departments. The Faculty’s research culture is further enhanced by its three large research centres: the Oxford Uehiro Centre for Practical Ethics; the Future of Humanity Institute; and the Global Priorities Institute.

Each year, many distinguished philosophers from around the world visit Oxford to give lectures and seminars. There are over one thousand students studying Philosophy at undergraduate level, always in combination with at least one other subject, and around 100 graduate students, about half of whom are studying for the BPhil or the specialist MSt courses in Ancient Philosophy, Philosophy of Physics and Practical Ethics, and the rest for the DPhil. A list of current Faculty members and their research interests can be found on the Philosophy Faculty website at:

http://www.philosophy.ox.ac.uk/faculty-members.

Further information about the Faculty can be found on its website at:

http://www.philosophy.ox.ac.uk.

Humanities Division

The Humanities Division is one of four academic divisions in the University of Oxford, bringing together the following faculties: Classics; English; History; Linguistics, Philology and Phonetics; Medieval and Modern Languages; Music; Oriental Studies; Philosophy; Theology and Religion; the Ruskin School of Art. The Division has over 500 members of academic staff, approximately 4,100 undergraduates (more than a third of the total undergraduate population of the University), 1,000 postgraduate research students and 720 students on postgraduate taught courses.
The Division offers world-class teaching and research, backed by the superb resources of the University’s libraries and museums, including the famous Bodleian Libraries, with their 11 million volumes and priceless early book and manuscript collections, and the Ashmolean Museum of Art and Archaeology. Such historic resources are linked to cutting-edge agendas in research and teaching, with an increasing emphasis on interdisciplinary study. Our faculties are among the largest in the world, enabling Oxford to offer an education in Arts and Humanities unparalleled in its range of subjects, from music and fine art to ancient and modern languages.

The Humanities Division has embarked on a major building project on the Radcliffe Observatory Quarter, following the recent announcement of the £150 million gift to create the Stephen A. Schwarzman Centre for the Humanities.

The Schwarzman Centre will serve as a dynamic hub dedicated to the Humanities. The building will bring together seven Humanities faculties, the Humanities Divisional Office, a new library and significant cultural and public engagement spaces in a space designed to encourage experiential learning and bold experimentation through cross-disciplinary and collaborative study. The Faculty of Philosophy will move to the Schwarzman Centre upon the completion of the project.
