Summary

Job title	Senior Research Fellow in Economics
Division	Humanities
Department	Faculty of Philosophy
Location	Global Priorities Institute, Trajan House, Mill Street, Oxford, OX2 0DJ, UK
Grade and salary	Grade 8: £45,585 - £54,395 per annum
Hours	Full time
Contract type	Fixed-term (2 years)
Reporting to	Assistant Director (Economics) of the Global Priorities Institute
Vacancy reference	1696066

The role

The Global Priorities Institute (GPI), in association with the Department of Economics, offers Senior Research Fellowship openings for experienced postdoctoral researchers. You will conduct advanced research in economics. You will work with the economics team at GPI to develop research projects both relevant to GPI's research agenda and within your own areas of interest and expertise, and you will spend at least 50% of your time working on these projects. The role requires no teaching load and only minor supervision responsibilities, although teaching may be arranged if the fellow would like to do so. We welcome applications from researchers who might prefer to complete one year at GPI before starting a new job or returning to an existing position.

The Global Priorities Institute is an interdisciplinary research centre, which aims to develop and promote philosophically and scientifically rigorous approaches to the question of how appropriately motivated actors can do good more effectively. GPI formally sits within the Faculty of Philosophy. You will be a member of GPI's economics research team and an Associate Member of the Department of Economics, one of the world's leading Economics departments. GPI is located in Trajan House in central Oxford,. You will have access to open plan desk space in the Economics Manor Road Building in addition to space at GPI's Trajan House office.

This is a full-time position at the University of Oxford and for a fixed term of two years, with a possibility of extension. Visa support is also available for successful applicants from overseas. Subject to UK tax regulations and the availability of funding a relocation allowance may be available to support with a move to Oxford.

We particularly encourage applications from women, black and ethnic minority candidates, as these groups are underrepresented in economics in general and at GPI.

Responsibilities

- Develop and implement new and original research, making significant contributions to the existing literature, in methodology, concepts and/or the understanding of a specific subject.
- Develop and implement new research methodologies and materials.
- Regularly write research papers for publication in top peer-reviewed economics journals, both alone and in collaboration with other group members.
- Present papers at national and international conferences, and lead seminars to disseminate research findings.
- Agree clear task objectives, organise, and delegate work to other members of the team and coach other members of the group on specialist methodologies or procedures.
- Share responsibility for shaping the research group's plans and the writing of group-funding applications for new research projects.
- Act as a source of information and advice to other members of the group on research expertise.
- Represent the research group at external meetings/seminars, either with other members of the group or alone.
- Carry out collaborative projects with colleagues in partner institutions, and research groups.
- Assist in developing the economics research group within GPI and building connections with academics from other institutions.
- Ad hoc teaching and supervision if and when the opportunity arises, insofar as this is beneficial to the postholder's career development.
- Assist in the supervision of pre-doctoral research fellows and visiting graduate students, particularly during Oxford's Trinity term (April – June).
- Contribute as appropriate to engagement with the Research Excellence Framework impact agenda, in liaison with others in GPI and elsewhere in the Department of Economics and Faculty of Philosophy.
- Reflect on the impact of their research on the world beyond the academy, and if so requested by the GPI Director, trace this impact in detail with a view to generating formal impact case studies.

Selection criteria

Essential selection criteria

- PhD awarded either in Economics or in a closely related discipline together with post-qualification research experience and expertise in Economics.
- Experience of independent research.
- Outstanding academic ability.
- Interest in global priorities research.
- An outstanding record of producing research suitable for publication in top economics journals and familiarity with the existing literature and research in the field.
- Possess sufficient specialist knowledge of and interest in economics to develop research projects and methodologies within global priorities research.
- Ability to independently plan and manage a research project, including a research budget.
- Proven ability to contribute ideas for new research projects.
- Excellent communication skills, including the ability to write for publication, present research proposals and results, and represent the research group at meetings.

Desirable selection criteria

- Experience of supervising staff.
- Experience of managing a research budget.
- Experience of making grant applications.
- Experience of and enthusiasm for interdisciplinary research.

Pre-employment screening

Standard checks

If you are offered the post, the offer will be subject to standard pre-employment checks. You will be asked to provide: proof of your right-to-work in the UK; proof of your identity; and (if we haven't done so already) we will contact the referees you have nominated. You will also be asked to complete a health declaration so that you can tell us about any health conditions or disabilities for which you may need us to make appropriate adjustments.

Please read the candidate notes on the University's pre-employment screening procedures at: <https://www.jobs.ox.ac.uk/pre-employment-checks>

About the University of Oxford

Welcome to the University of Oxford. We aim to lead the world in research and education for the benefit of society both in the UK and globally. Oxford's researchers engage with academic, commercial and cultural partners across the world to stimulate high-quality research and enable innovation through a broad range of social, policy and economic impacts.

We believe our strengths lie both in empowering individuals and teams to address fundamental questions of global significance, while providing all our staff with a welcoming and inclusive workplace that enables everyone to develop and do their best work. Recognising that diversity is our strength, vital for innovation and creativity, we aspire to build a truly diverse community which values and respects every individual's unique contribution.

While we have long traditions of scholarship, we are also forward-looking, creative and cutting-edge. Oxford is one of Europe's most entrepreneurial universities and we rank first in the UK for university spin-outs, and in recent years we have spun out 15-20 new companies every year. We are also recognised as leaders in support for social enterprise.

Join us and you will find a unique, democratic and international community, a great range of staff benefits and access to a vibrant array of cultural activities in the beautiful city of Oxford.

For more information, please visit www.ox.ac.uk/about/organisation.

Faculty of Philosophy

The Oxford Philosophy Faculty has over 150 academic members, all of whom are undertaking teaching and/or research in Philosophy at Oxford. Of these, around 60 hold permanent posts within the Faculty or the colleges; many distinguished philosophers hold posts elsewhere in the University. Oxford thus contains the largest group of philosophers in the UK, and one of the largest in the world. It has a vigorous research culture which is further enhanced by its four large research centres: the Oxford Uehiro Centre for Practical Ethics; the Future of Humanity Institute; the Global Priorities Institute; and the Institute for Ethics in AI. The Faculty performed outstandingly in the most recent UK Research Excellence Framework, achieving the highest volume of world-leading (4* ranked) philosophy research of any unit in the country.

Each year, many distinguished philosophers from around the world visit Oxford to give lectures and seminars. There are over fourteen hundred students studying Philosophy at undergraduate level, always in combination with at least one other subject, and around 150 graduate students, about half of whom are studying for the BPhil or the specialist MSt courses in Ancient Philosophy, Philosophy of Physics and Practical Ethics, and the rest for the DPhil. A list of current Faculty members and their research interests can be found on the Philosophy Faculty website at:

<http://www.philosophy.ox.ac.uk/faculty-members>.

Further information about the Faculty can be found on its website at:

<http://www.philosophy.ox.ac.uk>.

Global Priorities Institute

The Global Priorities Institute is an interdisciplinary research centre conducting foundational research to inform the decision-making of individuals and institutions seeking to do as much good as possible with their limited resources. It prioritises topics which are important, neglected, and tractable, and uses the tools of multiple disciplines, especially philosophy and economics, to explore the issues at stake. It is part of the Faculty of Philosophy. However, you will also have an affiliation with the Department of Economics.

The research agenda for the Global Priorities Institute is collectively set by the researchers at the centre. It focuses around the question of what we should do with a given unit or resources if our aim is to do the most good. This covers a wide variety of topics in economics, including:; the economics of catastrophic risks; discounting; game theory and mechanism design; estimating indirect effects; forecasting; Bayesian updating; causal identification and external validity; the economics of AI; and welfare economics.

GPI is planning to significantly increase its economics capacity in the next few years, and employ multiple researchers at various levels of seniority. Researchers at GPI will have the opportunity to contribute significantly to this growth, and to influence the research direction of the Institute.

More information on the research agenda and the Institute's published work to date is available from the website (<http://globalprioritiesinstitute.org/>). Potential applicants are strongly encouraged to consult this additional information before applying, in order to assess their fit to and interest in the Institute.

Humanities Division

The Humanities Division is one of four academic divisions in the University of Oxford, bringing together the following faculties: Classics; English; History; Linguistics, Philology and Phonetics; Medieval and Modern Languages; Music; Oriental Studies; Philosophy; Theology and Religion; the Ruskin School of Art. The Division has over 500 members of academic staff, approximately 4,100 undergraduates (more than a third of the total undergraduate population of the University), 1,000 postgraduate research students and 720 students on postgraduate taught courses.

The Division offers world-class teaching and research, backed by the superb resources of the University's libraries and museums, including the famous Bodleian Libraries, with their 11 million volumes and priceless early book and manuscript collections, and the Ashmolean Museum of Art and Archaeology. Such historic resources are linked to cutting-edge agendas in research and teaching, with an increasing emphasis on interdisciplinary study. Our faculties are among the largest in the world, enabling Oxford to offer an education in Arts and Humanities unparalleled in its range of subjects, from music and fine art to ancient and modern languages.

The Humanities Division has embarked on a major building project on the Radcliffe Observatory Quarter, following the recent announcement of the £150 million gift to create the Stephen A. Schwarzman Centre for the Humanities.

The Schwarzman Centre will serve as a dynamic hub dedicated to the Humanities. The building will bring together seven Humanities faculties, the Humanities Divisional Office, a new library and significant cultural and public engagement spaces in a space designed to encourage experiential learning and bold experimentation through cross-disciplinary and collaborative study. The Faculty of Philosophy will move to the Schwarzman Centre upon the completion of the project.

How to apply

Applications are made through our online recruitment portal. Information about how to apply is available on our Jobs website <https://www.jobs.ox.ac.uk/how-to-apply>.

Your application will be judged solely on the basis of how you demonstrate that you meet the selection criteria stated in the job description.

Please note that GPI is advertising for a number of postdoctoral and senior research fellow roles in economics and will run the selection processes for these concurrently. If you apply for one of these roles, by default we will consider that you have applied for all of them, unless you state otherwise in your application. You therefore only need to apply for one role and if you are invited to the longlisting stage of the process, we can discuss which role is likely to be most suitable given your academic background and level of experience.

Applications must include:

- A CV and supporting statement. The supporting statement should be about one page in length and should include at least 100 words that clearly demonstrate your knowledge of and interest in global priorities research. You should also explain briefly how you meet the selection criteria for the post using examples of your skills and experience. This may include experience gained in employment, education, or during career breaks (such as time out to care for dependants).
- A research paper of your best, most polished work in economics, typically a job market paper, that is suitable for us to use to assess your academic ability. It is not important that the topic of the research paper be relevant to the Institute's research agenda, provided that sufficient evidence of your fit to the Institute is provided elsewhere in your application.
- The details of three referees and indication whether we can contact them now. We expect to contact referees for all longlisted candidates. Alternatively, references can be submitted on application using EconJobMarket (www.econjobmarket.org) web portal. If you are applying for more than one position at GPI, each referee can submit a single letter of reference for all of your applications. Please note that all other application materials must be submitted via the University of Oxford portal. Candidates should supply each referee with a copy of these further particulars. The Faculty of Philosophy wish to take this opportunity to thank in advance those referees who write on behalf of applicants.

For the preferred candidate, we will also take up a reference from their current or most recent former line manager, excepting those cases in which the line manager has already submitted a reference, or the candidate does not have a line manager in the relevant sense. Permission will be sought from the preferred candidate before taking up such an additional line manager reference.

The Faculty of Philosophy wish to take this opportunity to thank in advance those referees who write on behalf of applicants.

Please upload all documents as PDF files with your name and the document type in the filename.

Details on the selection process

Longlisted candidates will be invited to complete a questionnaire concerning the extent and nature of their interest in global priorities research. Shortlisted candidates will then be invited:

- to submit a research proposal (of no more than 1,000 words) prior to interview;
- to participate in an interview (around 30 minutes in length), and
- to give a presentation on their job market paper.

We aim to notify longlisted candidates within two weeks of the closing date for applications, and to further notify shortlisted candidates within one month of the closing date. We anticipate holding final interviews in mid-January. We will update our website with timings for the selection process: <https://globalprioritiesinstitute.org/opportunities/>

All applications must be received by midday UK time on the closing date stated in the online advertisement.

Information for priority candidates

A priority candidate is a University employee who is seeking redeployment because they have been advised that they are at risk of redundancy, or on grounds of ill-health/disability. Priority candidates are issued with a redeployment letter by their employing department(s).

If you are a priority candidate, please ensure that you attach your redeployment letter to your application (or email it to the contact address on the advert if the application form used for the vacancy does not allow attachments).
